HELLO FROM AUSTRALIA

Tessa is from White Cliffs – that is in the desert in Australia. It is a small village with only 80 people but it has got a shop, a café, a petrol station, a launderette and a pub. It has not got a supermarket or hospital.

Tessa's family have got a farm. It is very far from the big city. It is a little lonely there, but they are lucky because they have got a phone, satellite TV and e-mail. White Cliffs has not got a school or teachers, so Tessa stays at home and has lessons on the Internet or on TV.

Tessa's best friend, Helen, lives 100 kilometres away in another small village called Goombalie. Helen's family have got a phone and a radio. It is a two-way radio; they can listen to the radio and they can talk on the radio, too. There is not a teacher in Goombalie so school lessons are on the radio. The children can ask the teacher questions and she can answer them.

Three times a year, Tessa and Helen meet their teachers and classmates at a school camp. They have lessons at the camp, but they also play sports.

Tessa and Helen believe that having lessons with a teacher on the radio or on the internet is cool, but they miss their classmates. Some lessons like Art and science experiments, are very difficult by radio.
