Lord of the Flies, by William Golding

Chapter One

The sound of the shell

- 1 The boy with fair hair lowered himself down the last few feet of rock and began to walk towards the lagoon. Though he had taken off his school sweater and carried it now from one hand, his grey shirt stuck to him and his hair covered his forehead. He was climbing heavily among the trees and plants of the jungle when a red and yellow bird, flew upwards with a witch-like cry; and this cry was echoed by another.

“Hi! It said, “wait a minute!”

The bushes opposite him were shaken and a large number of raindrops fell making noise.

“Wait a minute,” the voice said, “I got caught up.”

- 2 The fair boy stopped and pulled his socks with an automatic move that made the jungle seem for a moment like home.

The voice spoke again.

“I can hardly move with all these trees and plants.”

The owner of the voice came out of the bushes. His naked knees were fat and scratched by thorns. He bent down, removed the thorns carefully, and turned round. He was shorter than the fair boy and very fat. He came forward, searching out safe area for his feet, and then looked up through thick glasses.

“Where’s the man with the megaphone?”

The fair boy shook his head.

- 3 “This is an island. At least I think it’s an island. That’s a reef out in the sea. Perhaps there aren’t any grown-ups anywhere.”

The fat boy looked surprised.

“There was that pilot in the airplane. But he wasn’t in the passenger tube, he was up in the cabin in front.”

The fair boy was looking at the reef.

“All the other kids,” the fat boy went on, “some of them must have got out. They must have, mustn’t they?”

- 4 The fair boy began to walk as casually as possible towards the water. He tried to be relaxed and not very uninterested, but the fat boy went after him.

“Aren’t there any grown-ups at all?”

“I don’t think so.”

The fair boy said this without showing any happiness; but then he realized that this was a dream come true. In the middle of the spot he stood on his head and smiled looking at the fat boy upside down.
