You will hear a man talking about extreme temperatures.
Listen and underline the correct word in brackets.

UN says extreme heat is the new normal

The United Nations weather agency has warned that extreme temperatures are "the new normal". Scientists 1. (blame / claim / proclaim) that climate change is making heatwaves longer, hotter and more frequent.

In July 2023, many countries experienced 2. (rare / real / record) hot weather. In parts of the USA and China, the mercury went over 50°C. In Death Valley, California, it was 54°C; and in Xinjiang, China, it got up to 52°C. In Spain and Italy, the temperature rose to 46°C. The 3. (various / serious / hideous) effects of these temperatures prompted many European countries and Japan to issue heat alerts, urging citizens to be 4. (cautious / conscious / anxious) by seeking shade and staying hydrated. The UN weather agency has warned Europe's heatwave 5. (should / would / could) repeat in 2024.

A spokesperson for the United Nations warned of the need to cut greenhouse gas 6. (explosions / emissions / additions). He stated: "Extreme weather is increasing in frequency in our 7. (warming / warning / worrying) climate. It is having a major impact on human health and water supplies." He added: "We have to step up efforts to help society 8. (adjust / adapt / attune) to what is unfortunately becoming the new normal."

The European Travel Commission said the extreme heat is making 9. (passengers / managers / travellers) change their travel plans. People who used to holiday in Spain, Italy and Greece are choosing to go to 10. (hotter / colder / cooler) countries instead. A woman who wanted to "escape the heat" by going to Rome complained that the Italian capital was hotter than her hometown in Texas.
