Means of transport around the world

Double-decker-London

The red double-decker buses of London are world famous and one of the most common sights in London. They have got two levels, and some have got an open top so that tourists can see the sights better. Over sixty years ago, the first double-decker took passengers around London, and today they are still popular. They are a great way to get around London and they are not very expensive.

Gondola – Venice

You can travel in two ways in Venice, by water or on foot! You can catch a water-bus or a water-taxi, but the most exciting way to see the city is in a gondola. These are long, narrow, black boats and the drivers use poles to move it and take people around the city. They were the most common means of transport in the 18th century. However, today mainly tourists ride in them. It can be expensive, but it's a lovely way to see this beautiful city.

Yellow taxis – New York

New York is an exciting city full of rich and famous people. It's also well known for its bright yellow taxis! There are more than 12,000 yellow taxis in New York city, so it's easy to find one. You might also find a friendly, talkative driver. Perhaps he'll tell you about some of his famous passengers!

Camel and Felucca – Egypt

Aswan is an ancient city in Egypt. It's next to both the desert and the River Nile, so there are a lot of different ways to travel. First, you should ride a camel in the desert! Don't be nervous! You'll have a guide! After that, you can relax on a felucca and travel down the Nile. Feluccas are traditional sail boats and they're famous in the Mediterranean.
