Passage 1

First day at work

Hi Kate!

Thanks for your email. I'm glad to hear that you are well. Yesterday was my first day at work and I can't wait to tell you everything about it! I never thought that working as a personal assistant would be so exciting!

I was in a hurry all morning and I almost got late on my first day. My new office is in the centre of the city so it's easier for me to take the train than to drive. Unfortunately though, my train arrived late and I had to run to get to the office on time. When I got there I was introduced to all the staff. They were all very friendly to me but I think it is going to be difficult for me to learn all those names.

When it was time to meet Mr Johnson, the boss, I got really nervous. The first thing I was told to do was to make the boss a coffee. While I was about to serve his coffee I almost spilt it on his suit. He knew that I was nervous so he didn't say anything. I spent the morning answering his calls and arranging meetings for him. He is surely a very busy man.

I was also so busy that I couldn't go out for lunch and ate at my desk. Then while I was eating you will never guess who entered the office! It was David Beckham! I couldn't believe that the famous footballer was standing right in front of me! He had an appointment with my boss! He was so kind that he gave me an autograph! We even had a small chat!

It turns out that my boss has lots of famous clients and I wonder who will be in tomorrow! I'll let you know!

Write to me soon,
Lindsey

Passage 2

Four Top European Destinations

London: The capital of England and the United Kingdom is located at the river Thames in Southern England. There are many important buildings in this city like the London Eye, Big Ben and Buckingham palace, where the Queen lives. The population in London is approximately 8,416,535 and the most widely language used is English.

Paris: The city of Paris is not only the capital of France but also the centre of all activities of the French. 2,273,305 people live in Paris. Many tourists are looking forward to visiting the Eiffel tower and the world's most known 'Louvre Museum' which hosts the famous Mona Lisa painting. French is the official language.

Rome: The city of Rome is not only the capital of Italy but also the most important and famous city in Europe. Italian is the main language spoken. There are about 4.3 million residents in Rome. Apart from the Colosseum, many people visit the Trevi fountain. One can also visit the Vatican which is the centre of the catholic world.

Madrid: Madrid is the capital and the largest city of Spain. Almost 3.2 million people live there and the main language is Spanish. It is the third largest city after London and Paris. There are many interesting sights for everyone. One of Madrid's most beautiful buildings is the Royal Palace which is the largest in Western Europe.

Passage 3

Eating out

The British have introduced food from many different cultures as for example the Indian, the Chinese and the Italian food.

Restaurants which serve these types of food are more popular than the traditional ones because they are often much cheaper. It's important to mention that in the larger cities there is a great choice of restaurants.

Take-away food

Restaurants often have a take-away service in which you buy cooked food and take it to eat elsewhere. The most common are Indian, Chinese and Italian pizza take-away and there are also the American fast-food restaurants. The original British take-away food is fried fish and chips and there are still hundreds of fish and chip shops.

Self-service

Another cheap way to eat out is to go to a self-service restaurant where you serve yourself from a counter and pay for your food before eating it.

Many self-service restaurants now offer a good range of salads and hot meals.

Restaurants

Restaurants are usually more expensive than fast-food restaurants or self-service cafes. Most restaurants show a menu outside the building so you can see the type of food served and the prices.

Drinks such as wine and beer usually cost more in a restaurant than in a shop or pub.
