Japan's most famous dog

In front of the enormous Shibuya train station in Tokyo, there is a life-size statue of an Akita dog. Even though the statue is very small when compared to the huge flashing signs, it is not difficult to find. It has been used as a meeting point since 1934 and today you will find hundreds of people waiting there for their friends or just stopping by to take some photos.

Hachiko, an Akita dog, was born in 1923 and brought to Tokyo in 1924. His owner, Professor Eisaburo Uyeno and Hachiko were best friends right from the start. Every morning Hachiko accompanied his owner, who was a professor at the Imperial University, to Shibuya train station, where he got on the train to get to work. When he came back, the professor always found the dog patiently waiting for him at the train station, where he had left him. Sadly, the professor died suddenly at work in 1925 before he could return home.

Although Hachiko was still a young dog, the friendship between him and his owner was very strong and he continued to wait at the station every day. Sometimes, he would stay there for days at a time, though some people believe that he continued going back because of the food he was given by the passengers. Hachiko became a familiar sight to the citizens of Shibuya over time. In 1934, a statue of him was put outside the station. In 1935, Hachiko died at the train station, the place where he last saw his friend alive. The dog became famous not only all over Japan, but also all over the world and he symbolizes real friendship and loyalty. His story inspired many people and it was made into a film in 2009.

The Haunted house on the Hill

My name is Jimmy. I live in a nice town. We have a good school, lots of good shops and places to have fun. There's just one thing that isn't so nice about my town; it's the old haunted house on the hill. No one likes to (a) walk / live by that house especially on Halloween. There are lots of stories about that house. Some people say that old man Bradford died in that house. He was the (b) kindest / meanest old man in town and no one liked him. He used to shout at anyone passing by from the top window. He would (c) scream / invite "Go away!".

No one really knew why he was always so angry. Some say his wife left him. Some stories say he was haunted by a (d) ghost / servant, but no one knows for sure. At night you could also hear a dog barking, even though old man Bradford didn't have a dog! Perhaps he killed his dog, who knows?

I never believed those stories about the Bradford house being haunted until one night on Halloween, a few years ago. I had gone for trick or treat with some friends. My best friend Sam dared me to go up to the house and ring the doorbell. I knew the house was empty, but I didn't like the idea of going up there all alone, but I went anyway because I didn't want my friends to say that I was (e) scared / excited! I ran into the garden and I rang the doorbell when a loud voice shouted, "Go away!" Now I never go by that house anymore!

Good Luck!
